

Contributors

Mandana Arfa-Kaboodvand holds a PhD in TESOL from the University of Exeter, UK. She has been a language teacher to both young and adult learners for more than 29 years. She used to work as a lecturer at Azad University in Tehran, Iran. Currently she is a senior lecturer at Westminster International University in Tashkent, Uzbekistan. Her main areas of interest include language and culture, language teacher education, teacher development and teaching English to young learners. m_arfa@yahoo.com

Darío Luis Banegas is a teacher educator and curriculum developer with the Ministerio de Educación del Chubut (Argentina). He is the president of APIZALS, a teacher association in Patagonia, and founding editor of the Argentinian Journal of Applied Linguistics. Darío is the author of two collections of short stories. His interests include: CLIL, initial teacher education, and action research. D.Banegas@warwick.ac.uk

Deborah Bullock is a freelance educational consultant, writer and editor specialising in primary and secondary English language teaching. She is especially interested in learner-centred approaches to assessment, and practitioner research and development. She is publications manager for the IATEFL Research SIG and has co-edited several teacher-research publications. bullockdeborah1@gmail.com

Miguel Cerna is a Ph.D. student at the University of Bristol in UK. He has worked as an English teacher in Chile for over 10 years in different public and private schools. He has also worked as a teacher trainer and online moderator to support the professional development of teachers across Chile. Miguel's current research interests are action research and its links with reflective practice; collaboration and its potential for teachers' professional development; and technology-enhanced teachers' professional development. miguel.cernacaceres@bristol.ac.uk

Darren Elliott (MA ELT, DELTA) has been a teacher and teacher trainer since 1999, in the United Kingdom and Japan. He is currently associate professor in a Japanese university. He is also a freelance teacher trainer. He has published and presented internationally on learner autonomy, teacher development, and reflective practice, particularly guided by internet technologies. darrenreliot@gmail.com

Patrick Mthethwa is a lecturer at the University of Swaziland, Faculty of Education, Curriculum and Teaching. He has taught for many years in high schools, colleges, and universities in Swaziland and the United States. He has published many papers in English language education, with focus in ESL. pmthethwa@uniswa.sz

Paula Rebolledo (MA, PhD) has taught at primary and secondary school levels and has worked as a teacher educator in INSETT programmes in Chile and abroad. She has been mentoring teacher-research on the Aptis Action Research Award Scheme and the Champion Teachers project funded by the British Council. She is the co-founder of RICELT, the first Chilean network of researchers in ELT. prebolledoc@gmail.com

Andrea Robles López is an English teacher in Iquique, Chile. She works in a high school and is the head of the English department in the school where she works. She has participated in different projects including the Champion Teachers action research project. She is interested in professional development and special educational needs in the classroom. miss.andrea.robles@gmail.com

Ana Inés Salvi is currently doing a PhD in Applied Linguistics and has completed an MA in English Language Teaching, both at the University of Warwick in the UK. At the same time, she has been teaching academic English and ELT-related courses at the University of Warwick, at Coventry University, and in China. Previously she taught English in schools and at university in Argentina. She is co-editor of ELT Research for the IATEFL Research SIG, and her research interests are critical education, pedagogy of autonomy, practitioner research, and arts-informed research methods. anainess26@yahoo.com.ar

Richard Smith is a Reader in ELT & Applied Linguistics at the University of Warwick. He has helped edit ELTED since 2000, and has chaired its editorial board since 2009. He was coordinator of IATEFL's Research SIG between 2011 and 2015. Details of his recent publications and invited plenaries and workshops can be found here.

William M. Sughrua is Profesor-Investigador Titular in applied linguistics at Universidad Autónoma Benito Juárez de Oaxaca, Mexico. He holds a PhD in Applied Linguistics from Canterbury Christ Church University at the University of Kent. His teaching and research interests are in critical applied linguistics, teacher training, academic writing, and autoethnography. billsughrua@gmail.com

Ribut Wahyudi is lecturer in the Faculty of Humanities, Maulana Malik Ibrahim State Islamic University, Malang, Indonesia and is now a PhD candidate at Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand. He has published articles in several journals and has published a book chapter with Palgrave Macmillan (2016). He also sits on the International Editorial Board of LiNGUA. Ribut.Wahudi@vuw.ac.nz

Mark Wyatt's qualitative research has appeared in various journals. In the 1980s, his poetry appeared in magazines including Ambit, Echo Room, Litmus, New Statesman, Poetry Durham, Poetry London, Poetry Nottingham, The Rialto and an Arts Council anthology, P.E.N. New Poetry II (Quartet). He moderates the IATEFL Research SIG discussion group and co-edits ELT Research, a publication which encourages innovative ways of expressing research experience. mark.wyatt@port.ac.uk

Illustrations by Tim Cantor ®.