

CONTRIBUTORS TO Vol 2 Issue 1

Dr. Sorin Baciu, senior lecturer; teaching ESP since 1973 at the Bucharest Polytechnic University, Chair of foreign languages; member IATEFL 1993; member ESP-SIG, 1994; one of the initiators of the PROSPER project in collaboration with the British Council representatives in Bucharest. Areas of current interest: communicative teaching of grammar, language awareness activities, teacher training.

Fiona Copland, has worked in schools and British Council centres in Nigeria, Hong Kong and Japan. she is currently teaching on the RSA/UCLES revised CTEFLA programme at the Brasshouse Centre, Birmingham as well as teaching on the MSc in ESP at Aston University. Her main interests are in initial teacher training and telephone discourse.

Rinelle Evans, deputy principal of a large secondary school in Pretoria, south Africa, where she teaches English to Africaans speaking pupils. She is also involved with a new telephonic help-line (ESL distance learning) project for adults, and various language and curricular committees engaged in designing a new language policy and equitable schooling system for the multi-cultural country of South Africa.

Chris Kennedy is senior Lecturer and Director of the Centre of English Language Studies (CELS), in the School of English, University of Birmingham. He has lived and worked in several countries overseas and his current interests include language policy, innovation, applied corpus linguistics and language awareness, and English for professional communication. He is a past Chair of the International Association of Teachers of English as a Foreign Language (IATEFL) and is Series Editor of ELT Review (Prentice Hall/Macmillan).

David Kennedy, received his Master's in TEFL/TESL from the University of Birmingham and has worked as both a language teacher and teacher trainer. He has formerly held posts in China and the UK and is now teaching full time in Northamptonshire.

Hilary Nesi is a lecturer in the Centre for English Language Teacher Education at the University of Warwick. she has an Msc in ESP from the University of Aston and a PhD from the University College Swansea. Her research interests include learners' dictionary use, the analysis of lexis in discourse, and ESP/EAP vocabulary development.

David Owen is currently working for ARAMCO in Saudi Arabia in the area of materials development and English for Special Purposes. His experience spans a wide range of professional responsibilities in different countries - from language teaching to Teacher Education & Development at both pre and inservice levels. He has a particular interest in CALL as it relates to materials development and language teaching and in computer-based language testing.

William (“Bill”) Pellowe teaches EFL at Aso Foreign Language & Travel College in Fukuoka, Japan. He is currently enrolled in the MA TES/FL Distance Learning Programme of the Centre for English Language Studies at the University of Birmingham. One of his current projects is a content-based introductory Internet course for his students. Readers are encouraged to visit this site (which is under heavy construction) at URL <http://www.ibeam-net.com/bpellowe>.

Elena Savu, assistant lecturer, teaching ESP since 1992 at the Bucharest Polytechnic University, Chair of foreign languages; member IATEFL, 1993; co-ordinator of the ESP-SIG, 1994. Current interests: communicative teaching methodology, classroom research.